

Press release

ProData Consult and emagine Group are now officially one

The two European companies are now officially one as of 1 December. The synergies between the two businesses will pave the way for better services, deliveries, and performance to benefit clients, partners, and consultants alike in the years to come.

Paris/Copenhagen, 1 December 2021

The two European consultancies have obtained approval from the appropriate authorities in the EU and local countries to merge from 1 December. Now the integration will start.

“Today, we celebrate unity and becoming one company. As a larger company, we have the power to navigate change with better possibilities for our partners, bringing them additional value in the process,” says Anders Gratte, CEO of the new joint entity.

The companies will now embark on an integration journey and gradually complement and integrate business offerings, processes, and administration.

“As one united company, we will harmonize and optimize our processes by leveraging synergies across the group to benefit all our business partners. Both emagine Group and ProData Consult have outstanding and dedicated employees who share the same ambitions to deliver high-end services to IT, engineering, and digitalization projects. We look forward to developing, growing, and expanding together,” says Jean-Francois Bodin, CCO of the new joint company.

Ready for the future

emagine Group is firmly positioned in business, engineering, and information technology, in France, Germany, and the UK. Whereas ProData Consult is outstanding in talent-centric sourcing of business and IT consultants in Scandinavia and Poland.

“We look forward to embracing the future when we join these magnificent strengths, creating one fantastic company, and we are committed to delivering top services and solutions,” says Anders Gratte.
